HOOVER IS IN NO HURRY TO RESIGN POST

Candidate is Willing to Remain in Cabinet as Long as Coolidge Wants Him

CONFERENCE ARRANGED

Commerce Secretary Will Talk over Situation at President's Summer Home

BULLETIN
Superior—(P)—President Coolidge will accept the resignation from the cabinet of the secretary of the commerce department, but the date of acceptance has not been decided as yet.

President Coolidge will not ask the Republican presidential candidate to remain in the cabinet during the whole electoral campaign.

The resignation of Secretary Work of the interior department, will also be accepted by Mr. Coolidge.

The chief executive has many names before him to fill both vacancies in the cabinet. As yet he has made no final choice.

Washington.—The general impression here is that Secretary Hoover would like to remain in the cabinet but it is not known how President Coolidge feels about it. The decision of course, rests with the president. Mr. Hoover is ready to step out and he is ready to serve as long as the president wants him.

The letter of resignation was accompanied by a letter from Secretary Hoover which in effect stated that he was at the service of the president. The conference which has been arranged for Brule, Wis., will settle the matter. Mr. Hoover's friends are divided as to the best course to pursue. Some feel that he should make an active campaign or at least active enough to make it unnecessary for him to be burdened with the responsibilities of the department of commerce. Others feel he should remain passive, giving his time to the campaign when it is required, but in general giving the country to understand that he is remaining here to familiarize himself with the affairs of the administration which he hopes to lead after March 4 next.

DOESN'T LIKE SPEAKING

Mr. Hoover does not relish stump speaking. He shrinks from it very much as did Mr. Coolidge. Yet against a campaigner like Governor Smith, who delights in meeting crowds, the psychological impression of remaining too much in the background is in contrast that campaign managers are not always ready to accept on behalf of a candidate.

The management of the Republican campaign incidentally is growing more cohesive every day. The delay in persuading Senators Moses to take the eastern headquarters and James W. Good the western headquarters is as yet unexplained. There are some rumors that each one of these men, while perfectly willing to defer to Chairman Work, actually wanted the right to run the campaign in their respective regions very much as if they had the absolute power of a national chairman. It is known that either Mr. Good or Senator Moses might have been made national chairman as each is sufficiently strong in the party councils to assume that responsibility.

CAMPAIGN IS UNDERWAY

Mr. Hoover, however, has toned out the publicity and brought the necessary harmony for a running start. Responsibility has been clearly outlined and delegated and the incident itself is said to be a tribute to Mr. Hoover's tact and organizing ability. For while Mr. Hoover by no means appears as the directing genius of the forthcoming campaign and to all intents and purposes he will live apart from campaign management, he will on the other hand be in intimate touch with each of the three men managing his campaign. The eastern and western managers will therefore feel like subordinates out of touch with the chief executive but will be in direct contact with him at all times.

Mr. Hoover will probably be in Washington most of the time and in close enough communication with the New York and Chicago management by telephone and by personal conference if necessary, to watch vigilantly every move in the campaign. In general, the Republican campaign may be said to be started. The Democrats have their national committee meeting in New York this week, when they hope to work out their organization problems.

Al Promises Farm Relief In Event Of His Election

Albany, N. Y.—(P)—Democratic campaign plans are shaping up rapidly and within 48 hours will be disclosed to the country.

In New York City Wednesday the national committee will organize and a chairman will be named to direct operations. Governor Smith and Senator Robinson, his running mate, both will attend the meeting and will have much to say in the mapping out of battle lines.

The vice presidential nominee, after a brief stop-over in Albany Monday, proceeding to New York by train, leaving the governor behind to make the trip down the Hudson Tuesday by automobile.

The meeting here of the two nominees was their first since they were nominated at Houston. For an hour they discussed campaign strategy, organization and issues, but all they would say later as to the ground covered was that the situation had been discussed in a general way.

Coincident with their chat, however, it was disclosed that Governor Smith had given his word that if elected he would begin at once to formulate a legislative program for farm relief. He gave this pledge in a message to W. H. Settle, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau federation, who had in-

COOLIDGE COMMUTES SENTENCE OF NEGRO

Milwaukee—(P)—It was a choice between trying the negro speckled beauties of the Erie river for President Coolidge or appearing in court to hear his wife's claim for alimony. Miss Albert confessed that the plan did not satisfy her, but that it was the only one she had been able to think of by which the future comfort of her father, mother and brother could be assured.

"I wouldn't mind working if I could get anywhere by doing it," she explained, "but under the circumstances I think the only solution is for me to marry some man who will take care of my parents."

When she first made this offer six months ago she received numerous proposals. Eventually she accepted the offer of W. W. Gaynes, 48, postmaster of the soldiers' home here, to provide a home for her parents on a the Albert family lived in one of the six months' trial basis. At the end of houses Gaynes owns here.

RAILS AND AIR FOR TRANSPORT

Air Lines and Railroads Combine to Speed Travel to Northwest

Chicago—(P)—Officials of four western railroads and two airplane lines conferred here Tuesday on plans for the operation, tentatively set to start about August 15, of a Chicago-St. Paul air passenger line that will bring passengers from the northwest into Chicago in time to board noon trains for the east.

Preliminary arrangements for the enterprise were made by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh recently in conferences here and at St. Paul. Tuesday the traffic managers of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific lines met with heads of the Northwest Airways and the Transcontinental Air Transport to untangle the intricate problems of inter ticket sales and air schedules hooking up the eastern and northwestern rail lines.

How soon the air link can be placed in operation was said to depend on the delivery of new planes to the air transportation companies. Colonel Lindbergh, who is expected to return here from the Pacific coast within a week, heads the technical committee working over the equipment of the new lines.

The plan for transportation of passengers by air from Chicago to St. Paul, where train connections can be made for the northwest with the ultimate terminus at Seattle, Washington, were announced some weeks ago.

The plan includes transportation of passengers from the northwest to St. Paul by rail and from that city to Chicago by air, where connections can be made for eastern trains. Likewise passengers from the east can transfer to planes here and continue north. The new northwestern service will take effect probably by August 15, Colonel Brittin said.

The meeting Tuesday will provide the first link in the new plan of transportation which may later develop into another airline link at some point beyond the twin cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul. That however is not definite and the experience gained in the Chicago-Twin City operations will provide a guide to future operations.

The type of plane to be used in the service has not yet been decided, being left to the technical committee of the Transcontinental Air Transport company which is headed by Colonel Charles Lindbergh.

"Speed" Holman, who won last year's New York to Seattle transcontinental air race, has drawn his plans for the type of ship he believes best fitted for the service and will submit them to the committee headed by Colonel Lindbergh in New York City.

Mr. Holman, recently set a record for consecutive loops in the air, totalling 1,433 in five and one half hours.

Present plans in the transportation service do not include any new landing fields, the municipal airport at St. Paul and the World-Chamberlain field at Minneapolis serving the purposes at the Twin Cities terminus, together with the Municipal airports for the national committee. Considerable speculation had followed Chairman Work late in the day made public a telegram from the senator in which he denied that he had gone to New York to open an eastern headquarters for the national committee. Considerable speculation had followed Chairman Work late in the day made public a telegram from the senator in which he denied that he had gone to New York to open an eastern headquarters for the national committee.

The national chairman took occasion Monday to clarify the part which Senator Moses of New Hampshire, is playing in the campaign after terming him a contact man between eastern state and national organizations. Mr. Work late in the day made public a telegram from the senator in which he denied that he had gone to New York to open an eastern headquarters for the national committee.

Passengers from the east leave their trains here at the Milwaukee house in Wisconsin and New York Central roads and a day with President Coolidge, probably to the Pacific coast, making a transfer to airplane. Eastbound passengers are likewise served good food at a reception and entertainment in the city. He is to motor to the home of Mr. Holman, who is to motor to the home of Mr. Holman.

On August 1, he is to receive formal notification of his appointment and deliver the address of an eastern Senator Curtis of Maine.

Colonel Lindbergh informed of his presidential nomination at the White House on August 1.

He will be in Indianapolis Saturday, Aug. 12, to speak at the meeting of the Indiana Farm Bureau Federation.

William H. Settle, president of farm federation said that Hoover evidently intends to ignore the farm and his failure to respond will be taken as such.

With the trial four months to run, Miss Albert had decided she had no go through with it. She turned toward her having a good time, during the six months' period was the reason she gave Tuesday for abandoning the arrangement.

"He told me when we first came down here that he wanted me to meet some young fellows and have a good time," she said. "When I did, he expected. He accused me of being rude to him, although I always treated him as nicely as I could."

"I know now I can never get him. Under the circumstances I am no longer here in his house."

Gaynes, who lost a leg in an accident following the Spanish-American war, agreed that the bargain was off.

During the two months trial period the Albert family lived in one of the six months' trial basis. At the end of houses Gaynes owns here.

Neenah—Walter Pelke, Menasha, who was arrested Sunday afternoon on Third st by officer Stilp, who claimed he was driving his car while intoxicated, and who was given a sentence of 10 days at the workhouse, $100 and costs and his license revoked for one year, has disappeared and the entire sheriff force of the county is searching for him. Up to noon he had not been found. He was taken to Municipal court at Oshkosh by the arresting officer who turned the prisoner over to the sheriff. During the court procedure, the prisoner slipped out and got away. A bench warrant will be issued to bring him back into court where he will receive a sentence twice as severe as the first one. WALL STREET GETS BACK TO NORMALCY AFTER RECORD SALE

Higher Money Rates Reduce Volume of Speculative Credit by Brokers

New York — (AP) — Higher money rates imposed by Federal Reserve authorities to reduce the volume of speculative credit have definitely stopped the orgy of wild speculation on the New York Stock Exchange and in other leading securities markets of the country.

Total sales on the New York Stock Exchange have fallen from the record of 5,182,600 shares on June 12 to slightly more than 1,600,000 on June 25. Brokers' loans declined nearly $300,000 in two weeks.

Customers' rooms of the leading commission houses, where standing room was at premium less than a month ago, now contain many vacant chairs. Night work is no longer the rule and vacations, previously canceled, have been restored. Extra employees taken in for the emergency are being dropped. Whereas six weeks ago the exchange was being closed on Saturdays because of the congestion of business, today there is some agitation for suspending Saturday trading for lack of business.

In other words, Wall Street has returned to normalcy.

Prices of many leading industrial and railroad stocks are now selling $10 to $25 below their high levels of the year, while many of the high priced specialties have dropped $25 to $100 in value. Gigantic paper profits of the big "bulls" of Wall Street have been pared down, and thousands of small traders have been financially crippled or wiped out.

The terrific smash in Bancitaly Corporation common stock on the New York Curb Market, with a decline from $223 a share in April to $100 in June, probably has caused the greatest individual damage. This stock was widely held by persons of small means throughout the country, particularly along the Pacific Coast.

The decline in prices in the last few weeks has reduced the quoted value of securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange by billions of dollars. General Motors stock alone declined nearly $700,000,000 in quoted value between May 7, when it established the year's high of $210 a share and June 19, when it sold below $170.

Wall Street is now actively debating whether the recent decline marks the beginning of a major "bear" market or only another interruption of the "bull" movement which has been under way for more than four years.

Time alone will supply the answer.

CONNECT 260 FIXTURES TO WATER, SEWER LINES

More than 260 fixtures were connected with Appleton water and sewer systems last month, according to the monthly report of George Gaulin, plumbing inspector. Fixtures connected were as follows: water closets 65, floor drains 68, wash basins 40, sinks 36, bathtubs 31, shower baths 2, drinking fountains 1, stop sinks 2, conductors 12, and laundry trays 3. The city treasury was enriched by $130.50 by fees resulting from these connections.

There also were 57 trench permits issued during the month, 26 for sewer trenches, 2 for sewer repair trenches and 29 for water connections. Fees for these permits amounted to $83.

INFORMATION BUREAU BROUGHT UP TO DATE

An effort is being made this week to bring up to date the Merchants' Information Bureau, a clearing house of rating information for customers and retail stores alike.

The bureau, which has been in operation for the past eight years, keeps a file of names, addresses, employment and rating of all customers, such information being turned in by the merchants of Appleton.

The service is popular with outside merchants. Frequently calls for information come from Milwaukee, but the largest number comes from Cleveland, Ohio, the headquarters of a central rating system.

MEETING URGES SANITARY LAVATORIES FOR SCHOOLS

The need for sanitary lavatories and cloak rooms in county rural schools is pointed out by A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, in letters sent this week to members of the school boards of each district. Mr. Meating urges the members to bring the matter to the attention of the district school meeting Monday evening. Each district of the county will meet Monday evening in accordance with the state law setting the date for the meeting.

Mr. Meating points out that sanitary chemical lavatories can be installed in the schools at a very low cost. He said the state board of health approves these chemical lavatories and the cost for chemicals per year is only $3.

HODGINS FINDS GOODS ARE PROPERLY BRANDED

There have been no complaints of misbranding of articles in Appleton since January 1, according to Joseph A. Hodgins, city assessor of weights and measures. The state law says all canned goods must have the manufacturer's address and the weight of the article on the wrapper of the can.

The city ordinance states that all articles sold over the counter shall have the weight on the package or on the slip accompanying the package. Mr. Hodgins states "that most of the stores live up to this ordinance."

The literature holds great interest and rounds off the people of Appleton.

Estimated costs of the subway were first placed as $8,000,000 and the city's share at $800,000. The fourth the total cost then equaled half the city's cost.

However, knocking $3,000 off the total cost reduces the highway commission's cost materially, and increases the cost to the city.

Once There Was a Steer that went all over the world. But not until after the meat was prepared for market.

The fine hair in its ears went to Paris to be used in an artist's "camel's hair" brush.

The shin bones went to Shetfield, England, where they became knife handles that were carried in men's pockets to South Africa and London.

The sinews and tendons went to Canada and Mexico — first boiled down into glue used in the manufacture of furniture.

Every part of this steer went somewhere and was used—even tiny glands no bigger than peas went to pharmaceutical houses to be made into medicine.

The farmer who raised this steer was glad to sell it to Swift & Company for a good cash price. If he had prepared it for market himself, it would not have been worth so much. Besides the meat, he could have saved only the hide and fats. All the rest of the steer would have been lost.

Swift & Company handles thousands of animals daily and uses every part of them. Economy results.

All calls must be made to those places before 8:15 on Saturday morning. It will be impossible for the Flower Cars to call for flowers if the calls are received after that hour.

After the program, swimming and other sports will be indulged in.

CAN'T USE HERZIGER PROPERTY FOR PARK

Supervisors decide Tract They Had in Mind is too Small

Neenah—The portion of the Louis Herziger lake shore property suggested for use as a Winnebago co. park, is too small for such purpose, it has been agreed by the co-board which visited the place Sunday in order to secure first hand inspection. A public park, such as the supervisors had in mind, will require some supervision and the area proposed for the Lake Shore park is not considered large enough.

Most of the supervisors, nevertheless, have expressed themselves as being in favor of securing land along the lake shore somewhere to use as a park. It has been suggested that a committee be appointed at the November meeting of the board to investigate all available sites. In the meantime, the supervisors will try and secure the public sentiment regarding such a plan.

BERMUDA MOURNS OLD SAILOR'S DEATH

St. Georges, Bermuda—(P)—Curios and furnishings gathered from every port in the world filled the coral stone cottage or Robert Francis Fox, who spent more than 50 of 86 years of life before the mast.

He built at 20 years ago on St. David's Island where he was born and where from distant lands he would send rare old pieces of furniture, pottery, glassware and odd things that he picked up on merchant voyages or whaling trips.

Fox died recently, one of the most celebrated characters of these islands. He took to the sea as a lad of thirteen on one of the whalers then operating from Bermuda and "the wheel's kick and the wind's song and the white sails shaking" was his life for half a century. When he settled down in his coral home, he became a teller of sea yarns, especially exciting stories of South American waters, and his cottage was a mecca of visitors to St. David's.

One of his curios was his own coffin which he built of Bermuda juniper wood and kept under his bed, for my last port of call," he would tell visitors.

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN ISSUES

Light on the Republican campaign is furnished by a formal statement of instructions sent out to party leaders and workers by Chairman Work of the national committee. He warns particularly against raising the religious and prohibition issues. Both will, however, be raised.

Deplorable as it may be, there are extremists here and there who will support or fight because of the fact that he is a Catholic.

If for no other reason than to test American religious tolerance the nomination of Mr. Smith is a public gain. There must inevitably come a time, as Mr. Roosevelt once stated, when when we shall have a Catholic president. The year 1928 is as good a year as any to try out the principles on which our government rests in this respect, together with the honesty of our professions of religious liberty. This does not imply that Smith should or will be elected, but it does mean that he should not be voted against or defeated on religious grounds. The extent to which fundamental facts are recognized in this campaign will determine the true capacity of the American people for self-government. Those bigots and fanatics who try to inject religious considerations, either for or against Smith, should be held up to the condemnation and scorn they will richly merit.

The question of prohibition is another matter. We can quite agree with Dr. Work's assertion that: "The promptings of conscience and personal liberty within the law are not proper subjects for political debate." But that does not stop the right to change or advocate a change of law. He says the Republicans will not bring up prohibition, that if it is to be forced into the campaign it will be done by the Democrats. He should have no misgivings on this score. Mr. Smith has made it plain that prohibition will be a major issue with the Democrats. This can only mean that Smith will advocate repeal of the eighteenth amendment, while the Republicans will choose the alternative of opposing or approving repeal. It will be difficult if not impossible for them to ignore the question, although they will be likely to avoid it wherever it may seem to be politically safe. We should not be surprised, however, before the campaign is over if Mr. Hoover defends the eighteenth amendment on its merits or on the ground that sufficient time had not elapsed to test its efficacy and value.

Dr. Work urges that the Republican campaign be based primarily on the blessings of the tariff and Republican rule. This may satisfy the extreme Conservatives, the reactionaries who love an excessive tariff that enriches special interests, but it will not fire the imagination of either youth or liberalism. It may appeal to our "eminently respectable" class which is always content to let well enough alone and shivers at the thought of change, but not those who are looking for an enlargement of democracy and equality.

Neither the tariff prosperity nor Republican competency will quicken the emotions of that great body of voters who believe there is an agricultural problem to be solved, policies of war and peace to be settled, public works like the lake-to-the-ocean waterway crying for attention, and constitutional doctrine involving state rights and personal liberty in controversy.

Dr. Work can shut his eyes to all of these facts he must be credited with an archaic political mind. Perhaps on the whole the Democrats have shown less genius for government than the Republicans, and have fewer statesmen of demonstrated ability, yet they have given the country two of the greatest if not the greatest, presidents it has had since the Civil war. One thinks of Republican capacity for government instinctively, but one also thinks of many things along with it not so agreeable. We have a suspicion that the voters this year are going to be governed more by the personalities and declarations of the two candidates for president than by the capers and contortions of their campaign committees and orators.

MICHIGAN'S NEW INCOME

A generation or so ago Michigan was a great lumber state. Mighty pine forests covered her hills and river valleys, and the cutting of them poured a great stream of wealth into the pockets of Michigan's citizens.

Now most of the lumber is gone, although the upper peninsula still does a good bit of cutting each year. But Gov. Green believes that the summer tourist and vacation business will, in the near future, give Michigan an even greater annual revenue than the lumber business ever did in its palmiest days. He warns citizens that if they do not kill the goose that lays the golden egg—if, in other words, summer visitors are treated courteously, given good accommodations and are not overcharged—Michigan will speedily find her lakes, her sunshine and her beaches far more valuable than her old-time pine forests.

Probably he is right. It is amazing that Michigan's development as a vacation center has not been even more rapid. Climate and scenery are superb. Nature has provided a magnificent vacation ground there.

WHY HE KILLED HER

A New Jersey man walked into a police station the other day and confessed he had killed his wife.

"Ever since we were married my wife wanted pleasure, pleasure, pleasure," he explained. "She wanted to go to the movies all the time but I could not afford it. She wanted me to go to dances but I don't dance. Today she insisted that I take her to an amusement park, though I told her I had no money for such things."

Doubtless the man's wife may have been a bit insistent. Yet it does seem as if a man could take the trouble to learn a woman's tastes in such matters before he marries her. Once the ceremony is over it is time to make the best of it. Rushing into matrimony on the basis of a passing infatuation, without stopping to learn whether tastes and likes are at all suited, is sure to lead to trouble. It is a bit hard to work up very much sympathy over this wife murderer, even if his complaint is true.

A HIGHWAY INVESTMENT

There are investments and investments. Some things that hardly look like investments turn out, on examination, to be excellent money-back proposition.

Just now a great super-highway, connecting Canada and the United States with all the countries of South America, is being proposed. It would enable motorists to travel the entire length of the two continents. At first glance it looks like a good idea, but expensive—something that would cost more than it would be worth.

But maybe it would be a mighty good investment. At present there are only 1,000,000 autos in all South America. With such a highway in existence can it be doubted that that number would double, treble, almost overnight? And where would the new cars come from if not from the United States, purveyor of autos to all the world?

It might be that American business men would be very wise to get behind that proposed highway and make it a reality.

TERRIBLE THOUGHT

An obscure paragraph in a daily newspaper gave us, the other day, a great idea—or, rather, it put into our head the fear that someone else would get the great idea, and act on it.

This paragraph said that a bride in the Polish village of Tecsoc, obeying the ancient tradition which requires male guests at a wedding to kiss the bride, kissed some 7,000 guests within four hours after her marriage. The dispatch added that this was a world's record.

Undoubtedly. And now that the matron dances and flag-pole sittings have ended, is there not a great danger that some promoter will see that item and try to find a new champion in our own United States? The imagination reels at the thought.

Bedouin bands in the desert are using automobiles according to a dispatch from K. M. Probable, the Bedouin band in the United States.

We shall vote neither for T. S. Smith nor Herbert Hoover. Neither the Democrats nor the Republicans promise to save the country if it falls into the Department of the others.

Maybe those little Bush river Indians that have been singing "Pretty Please" are presidential messengers. The bee has gone elsewhere this year.

Julie Sabath of Chicago refused to allow her in an actress' divorce suit to be made public lest Chicago become a "Bos" of actresses." Chicago has just got to guard her four name.

A small town is one where the editor prints the names of the dead in our men.

A. Smith probably will be the next president.

He is the vote of the son of Smith.

FEET ARE BIGGER AND BETTER

Few readers will remember the time when a sprained ankle was daring, not to say risqué, if of feminine gender. Now the lady bumps her knee as a mere beginning. In the halcyon days when ankles were only casually exhibited, the slender, underdeveloped type was preferred; naturally this style of underpinning harmonized with the wasp-waisted, clinging, dependent, ready-fainting conception of beauty in distress that held sway in the early Victorian era. Feminine weakness was, of course, desirable in an age when masculine superiority was universally acknowledged. But all this has changed. Women with any spirit now demand and get equality with men. Here and there women are so tired and so imbued with the inferiority complex that they readily accept such despicable treatment as, for instance, lower pay than men for exactly the same work. Thus, in some unfair public school systems women teachers today are receiving several hundred dollars less in annual salary than men teachers receive for absolutely the same work—the politicians having other uses for the difference and the victims of the scurvy trick fearing to complain or protest against the injustice.

Those slender ankles the old time nuts raved about were really puny compared with the general run of ankles today. The dotty poets caught only quick flashes of em, and under vast spreading skirts of flapping yards of heterogeneous material of course even slovenly ankles looked comparatively trim.

Found or found there is no question that the modern woman, with a fair education, given the old fumets or properties, makes the old time heroine look like a slouch. Actual measurements of college women over a considerable term of years show that women are now taller and heavier, bigger and better, than they were even 20 to 30 years ago. They are heavier but with more slender than their predecessors, for they carry more muscle and less fat than the old time women did, and muscle takes up less room, although it weighs more than fat. The modern woman's muscle supports her, gives her a vigorous posture, and that is what the dressmakers try to express when they say "well groomed appearance." The gradual introduction of physical education into the common schools and the steady increase of athletics among women as a consequence probably accounts for this increasing physical perfection.

The small, cramped, underdeveloped feet so much affected by heroines of the days of female weakness no longer count as an attraction, thank heaven! If any man were foolish enough to select a woman because she has dainty little feet, he would be quite likely to get a defective, for the well educated and normally developed woman simply doesn't punish her feet that way.

I have only a general impression, of course, but it does seem to me as though people today have less foot trouble than people had 10 or 20 years ago. I believe this is a natural result of the introduction of physical education into the schools, the increasing popularity of athletics for women, and the more wholesome ideas these better educated women have about footwear. A girl with a fair education and a proper regard for her physical appearance is unlikely to crowd her toes into a pair of fresh shoes a size or two smaller than she ought to wear.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Wrong Culprit

A little boy with whooping cough got near my year old baby. I came right home with the baby and gave him a dose of castor oil. Did I do right? (M. A.)

Answer—You punished the wrong boy. If your baby was infected, he will not develop the first symptoms of illness until nearly two weeks. Then he will begin to cough. The cough will seem an ordinary cough for the first week or 10 days, then it will come in spells, perhaps with vomiting at the end of the spell, and the characteristic whoop. Better take the baby to your doctor for immunizing treatment—so called whooping cough "vaccine." This may not prevent the disease but it will tend to moderate the severity and duration of the disease. Also keep the baby in the open air as much of the time as possible day and night, especially if he does develop whooping cough.

Little Package of Trouble

Kindly advise me how to take the temperature. The special directions that came with the thermometer say to leave the thermometer in the mouth one half minute longer than the required time for reading. But it doesn't advise how long the required time is. (A. C. S.)

Answer—Unless your doctor directs a record of the temperature, I advise you to present the thermometer to some one who wants to keep on hand something to worry about. If the doctor wishes the temperature recorded, he will show precisely how to do it.

It's a Wise Horse That Knows Its Own Master

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—Believe it or not—but one of the veterans of the Manhattan "show game" lives in a perambulating cottage so that he can "escape" when he pleases and go where he will. To achieve this gesture of freedom he achieves something like a pastoral life, he built a cottage—fully equipped upon a truck. This he parks, for months at a time, somewhere upon the city's rim, where the birds awaken him in the morning and trees nod from neighboring hillsides. He could, of course, have a home in the country, but such is the roving nature of the dredging wool showman that this would involve the necessity of taking root in a given spot. As it is he can be in Broadway or in Westchester county.

This "Broadway Gypsy" is Joe Barrett, who at the present moment plays the role of Mike, a singing barkeep of the old Bowery days and he has known the "holy-toms" in his day. During the short season his "cottage" spins back and forth between the "main stem" and the country roads. When his show dates have ended he takes to the open road for a nomadic life.

About the quaintest character of the big street" remains Mississippi, last of the Negro cabbies of Broadway. While other cabbies have taken their stands near Central Park or the railroad depot, "Sipp" appears day after day, with his tall hat and his dusty outfit, driving back and forth in the heart of the bright lights belt. His major operations occur in the after-theater hours, for all the regulars know him.

When Al Jolson was playing in Manhattan, he was a regular customer of "Mississippi," who called each night at the Jolson dressing room. A number of the "old timers" of the stage still prefer the horse driven vehicles to taxicabs. "Sipp" knows every prominent cab fare in the Broadway belt, for this has been his route for many a year—winter or summer.

"Book-jockeys" carry on a small trade in the Times Square belt. They approach "prospects" whispering in their ears that "they have something pretty warm." They are very much like the vendors of filthy postcards in Paris. And, like these, they frequently "gyp" their customers. They will, for instance, show a sample book, pointing to certain chapters and passages. Then they sell their customers what purports to be the same book, but which is boxed and wrapped. Upon opening the package the purchaser finds he has been "busted."

One sidewalk salesman has a little pamphlet, concealed in an envelope. When the purchaser opens the envelope he discovers he has bought a seed catalogue such as is given away at a florist shop. Another has been slipping in the tiny "nickel-library" books turned out in Girard, Kas.

The most widely circulated of the "smut literature" is Frank Harris' "Life and Loves," which has brought $150 for early editions. A special edition is sold for $15. Harris, who once was looked upon as a journalist, critic and essayist of considerable importance, has since been barred from England.

Returning tourists tell me he is to be found among the expatriates of the Cafe Dome in Paris where he sits of evenings while tourists are brought to him. Negotiations for a book sale are made and he gets up to $20 a copy, selling as many as 80 a day.

HAPPINESS AHEAD

Far surpassing in emotional drama previous work as a comedienne, Colleen Moore has given a performance in the stellar role of "Happiness Ahead" that unquestionably should be considered the finest of her career.

"Happiness Ahead" opened last night at the Elite Theatre before an enthusiastic audience — an audience that laughed and wept by turns. Elements of comedy, romance and pathos have been well blended in this picture, endowing it with every quality of entertainment from humor to tragedy. Through it all the convincing work of Miss Moore dominates, whether the action be serious or comic, revealing in her a breadth of dramatic ability rarely found.

It is seldom that an actress who has been definitely catalogued as a comedienne can step into a field of drama unlimited in its scope and give a performance of the finish that marked Miss Moore's appearance in "Happiness Ahead." Never was an appearance more deserved than that which came spontaneously at the close of last night's showing.

The story of "Happiness Ahead" centers about an unsophisticated girl from a small town, who becomes the wife of a city cardsharp. Her disillusion and the subsequent regeneration of her husband provide the framework for a plot that is as unique as it is interesting. Edmund Lowe, who plays opposite, Colleen Moore, is provided with an unusually strong role—and he takes full advantage of his opportunities. The players in support represent an admirable example of casting. Lillian Tashman, Edythe Chapman, Charles Sellon, Robert Elliott and Carlos Duran being conspicuous for their good work.

William A. Seiter is to be commended for the excellence of his direction of "Happiness Ahead," which was written especially for Miss Moore by Edmund Goulding and scenarized by Benjamin Glazer.

NOVARRO'S NEW FILM

HAS POWER
The primeval lure of the sea, and the heroism of mariners battling the elements, form the background for an amazing drama of love, hate and adventure in "Across to Singapore," Ramon Novarro's new starring vehicle at Fishers' Appleton theater. The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production is a powerful saga of the clipper ships, it is one of the most gripping sea stories in years.

Novarro plays the sailor hero of an amazing love quest that leads him over the Pacific through terrific storms, mutiny, attack by Oriental pirates, and other thrilling adventures, into an amazing drama of human emotions. Adventure and the clash of human will and the fury of the elements form a thundering background for a beautiful love story that runs through the drama as a central theme.

Joan Crawford plays the heroine, a New England girl thrust into the midst of an adventure in the Orient. Her skill at emotional acting is strikingly demonstrated in the new picture, and her beauty more than apparent. Ernest Torrence, as the hero's older brother, dominates a number of powerful scenes and James Mason, as the sinister first mate is a convincing player. Anna May Wong is a siren of the Orient, and Edward Connelly and Frank Currier provide some remarkable character work. Dan Wolheim and Luke Martin are convincing as sailors.

The Singapore scenes are spectacular and the New England village is a realistic and elaborate setting for the opening scenes in the play. The story, adapted from the tale by Ben Ames Williams, well known for his Saturday Evening Post fiction, is one of the most powerful sea romances of the decade, and on the screen its mighty drama is intensified a thousandfold.

ARTICLE BY PLANK IN NEW CHAMBER MAGAZINE

"Appleton Business," the chamber of commerce monthly bulletin came off the press Monday and will be distributed immediately to the business men of Appleton.

The bulletin contains an article by Joseph J. Plank on the assets of Pierce Park, stressing particularly the recreational value of the playground. Another interesting article is on the selection of a site for building a new home, the information for which was gleaned from the offices of local realtors. The article advises that a man constructing a new home should choose a site in a section of town that is due to grow and increase in value. The third article on the history and development of the chamber of commerce also appears in the magazine.

BATHING SUIT AND SLICKER IS COMMON SIGHT AT MADISON

Madison—(AP)—One sight on the streets of Madison particularly astounds summer school students at the University of Wisconsin who come from regions not graced by lakes.

The sight is of persons strolling calmly down state street, arrayed in raincoats and bathing suits.

Everyone in Madison lives within walking distance of at least one of the four lakes, and beach bathhouses are an unnecessary equipment. You student or otherwise, dons his or her bathing suit, throws a shaker of bathrobe over it, and walks to the water's edge.

Something just a bit different was observed recently when a gentleman of professional aspect came pedaling down state street on a bicycle, his head adorned with a straw sailor, and clothed in the customary slicker and bathing suit.

NEW FASHIONS

A PAGE OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

BEAUTY HINTS

Dearest Mom.
Here beginneth chapter one in the life of your favorite working girl. After a day of service, I am the same sweet child I was, and apparently my job is still good for at least one more day.

Really, Jane and I got a big wallop out of the day's toil. Had we been asked to jab a time clock when we started—promptly at nine—neither of us would have been surprised.

But such was not the case. A maid admitted us to a dressing room, where another one—with a French accent that was so delightful that I decided to parlez French it took my last brain cell—looked us over and was quite ready to give us a manicure, wave, or take any little touches we might require.

We were all baited for bear, however, and had attended to everything before we arrived. I noticed she did quite a great deal of beautifying to some of the other models, who had apparently left home in a hurry.

She decided that I am best in tailored or sporty frocks, and that my goal should be a distinguished simplicity. So she advised me not to curl my hair, or wear much makeup—and not to take on a pound, no matter how tempted I might feel to indulge myself at times.

Jane stacked up on the other side.

She appears to be an exotic type, who can wear bizarre styles and complicated costumes. It seems she has a certain dramatic quality, which I lack.

She is to wear her hair pulled back a la Russe, and to have it very sleekly brushed and coiled at the nape of her neck. She can be as lavish with her lipstick as she will.

Two of the mannequins here are blondes, and there is a redhead I think is marvelous. It seems blondes are the most desirable for mannequins, for several reasons. First they look well in white, pastels, and the delicate colors. Also they are natural magnets to men, and it seems that when women bring men with them to help select their clothes, the men nearly choose what the blonde is wearing—quite regardless of what it happens to be.

There are only these three mannequins besides ourselves, and they seem to be very attractive girls. We take the places of two others who recently left—one to go into the furies, and the other to marry a millionaire. We have struck the land of opportunity.

Work is really good for my constitution. I think I'm sold on it. With fondest love

What Not To Do With The Baby Told By Mrs. Barton

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

W^HEN all due respect to the kindly grandmother who loves to rock baby to sleep, we must insist that he should not be rocked. It sounds heartless, but many sensible things are—as we interpret the word. Not altogether because it might make him sick, or because he might get his backbone out of joint, but because one of the first bad habits a baby forms is his unreasonable demand to be rocked. If you ever have tried to break a baby of the rocking habit, you may have some conception of what I mean.

He should be laid quietly in his bed with the sheet smooth and straight beneath him and a mattress or folded quilt that has no bumps to make him uncomfortable. He should not have a pillow. When he is laid down he usually should be turned on his right side, especially after feeding. But this can be varied, as the soft bones of his head should not have the pressure constantly in the same place. That is the first don't on the list.

NO ACROBATICS

Second! Don't allow people to toss him up in the air. It speaks for itself. If no accident happens and he is neither crippled nor killed, it never should be allowed anyway, for a dozen other reasons.

Don't allow a baby to suck his thumb! He will start the habit but you must stop it. Tie a little mitten on him, or get one of the new protectors they sell at drug stores and tie it over his thumb and wrist for awhile.

Don't give him a pacifier! It almost certainly will affect his mouth, throat and air-passages. Adenoids make children ill and stupid. Just such a simple thing may alter the entire course of a child's life.

Don't think that because he has milk he doesn't need water. Give him all he will drink, not too cold, but not necessarily hot. A bottle is the simplest way.

Don't give him a used bottle twice. Bottle and nipple must be boiled thoroughly before each feeding.

Don't forget to change him immediately, when necessary and don't forget that he needs a bath every day and clean clothes every day. Also don't forget to change his clothes when you put him to bed at night.

Don't disturb him at night for anything except to be fed.

Don't feed him tubtubs.

Don't tickle him!

Don't try to make him sit up or walk when he can't. He'll give you plenty of warning when he is ready to do either.

LET HIM SLEEP

A baby's life should be a quiet, comfortable, lazy life. Don't worry if he sleeps all the time. So much the better. He is building up bone, muscle, nerve and brain. His brain does about 90 per cent of its physical growing before he is six years old.

Don't turn him over to an ignorant young nurse to look after.

What has all this to do with character training? Everything in the world! Physical imperfections, illness, malnutrition, or undernourishment, all the things that get their start in early childhood, affect character.

HOME STUDY PLAN GROWS IN FAVOR

Washington—(AP)—As the hours of work decrease and the leisure hours increase among American adults, more knowledge is sought at universities and colleges through their extension and correspondence courses.

The Federal Bureau of Education recently learned that 181 universities are conducting extension courses for adults, while 104 universities and colleges offer correspondence courses, and 37 institutions provide home reading courses.

In recent years the increase in the number of adult students who attend night school and study special courses by correspondence has been great, and the bureau predicts that since the masses are devoting more time to studying the people as a whole will be greatly benefited.

New Fashions Reflect Influence

Of Yachting, Golf And Tennis

Miss Alice O'Donnell

BY BETSY SCHUYLER

Newport, R. I.—Neither cold waves nor grey skies can hold back the Newport season. Many residents have arrived and their high walled estates already are the scenes of a round of parties.

Bathing, tennis, golf and riding seem to have yielded first place of interest in sports to yachting. Whether you own one or are a guest yachtsman your costumes should have a nautical look about them.

Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church, Jr., the former Muriel Vanderbilt, has bought a fine speed boat for an entry in the Narragansett Bay Regatta late in August. She has some swanky yachting togs, mostly white, with one double breasted blue jacket that looks authentically "salt sea."

JACKETS ARE NEEDED

Coats, as a matter of fact, have been necessary during the past week. Some like them of tweed, others have little tailored velvetine topcoats that give a svelt smartness. Alice O'Donnell wore a charming one of warm garnet colored velvetine, beautifully fitted, with long lapels and a couple of tricky pockets. Her kerchief of many colors superimposed in fine print on white linked it up with her white truck.

Even when it is too cold to swim, some smart Newporters take their daily stroll along Bailey's Beach. There I saw Mrs. C. D. Winslow going at quite a smart clip and wearing a modish double-breasted sports frock of green tussor silk. She carried a gay green kerchief in her hand.

Olive Whitman, daughter of the former governor of New York, arrived last week with her father to spend the season at the Casino.

She seems to favor print frocks, for she has worn several appealing ones since arriving. En route to the Casino with Hope Bennett, she wore an unusually attractive frock of morning glories in all colors seem to divide honors. Little Betty Taylor, with her fiance, Walter Gurnee Dyer, wore a bright blue sports frock, with lingerie collar and cuffs. Another day she chose yellow linen with a printed coat toping it.

Miss Olive Whitman

For tennis at the Casino, most of the girls wear white or light pink, blue or yellow sleeveless sports frocks.

Plain colored chiffons blossom out in the evening, however. A new and arresting dull reddish pink shade was chosen by Marian Gray at a recent dance given by her mother, Mrs. Kenneth Budd. It had a becoming, rounded decolletage, natural waistline and as many dipping panels as there are petals to a rose, it seemed.

Slip-on sweaters with pleated skirts of silk are a favorite costume for the 11 o'clock stroll. Mrs. Joseph Frazier wore a perfectly beautiful white one, of fine hand weave, with a crepe de chine skirt, topped by a white hat with a rolling brim. Mrs. Anita Stewart de Eraganza, the former countess, sponsored a dull green suit of this type and wore with it green sandals and hose, making quite an effective cool picture for warm day.

Yacht races start soon and with the sun high and bright swimming should be popular shortly.

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

Today, tomorrow and Thursday we shall continue the series of playing situations started last week. The cards of a Declarer's Closed Hand and Dummy will be shown, the contract and the question asked will be how Declarer should plan to play the hand. Make up in mind how you would answer the question after looking at the hands and before you read the explanation that follows.

Hearts does not fall, the entry in Dummy will give the chance to try the Spade finesse.

If the adverse side fails to drop in two clubs unless Dummy has fallen on that trick, Declarer will not be able to put Dummy in the lead, but will attempt to enable himself to do so well enough to cost a trick.

Copyright 1928 by F. D. Co.

PLAN OF DECLARER

Before playing to the first trick, Declarer can see that he is sure to make four-odd; but far from sure of the additional trick needed for game. He must lose the first trick and may lose two Spade tricks. His best chance for making game is to trump with an honor the next Club lead which is sure to ensure on tricks 2, and then lead two rounds of trumps. He should not trump with the Four because he may want to lead that card to put Dummy in the lead with his Eight. Trumping with an honor cannot cost a trick. Declarer has a total of nine trumps in his two hands while the combined adverse hands have only four. If they are all in one hand it will still be drawn even after ruffing with the honor if the four remaining trumps are divided equally; two leads will exhaust them and Declarer then can lead his three high hearts with the hope of dropping the adverse Jack. If he does this he can put Dummy in with the Eight of trumps, cashing Dummy's Ten of

KAUKAUNA WOULD SELL ELECTRICITY FOR HEATING HOMES

Seek Special Rate to Encourage Use of Electric Current for Heating Purposes

Kaukauna—This city, through Manager W. C. Sullivan and J. O. Posson, manager of the Kaukauna Electrical department, last Friday made application to the state railroad commission at Madison for the authority to fix rates for heating homes by electricity.

This city operates an electrical plant and the current would be generated at this plant which has operated at a nice profit since it became municipally owned in 1912.

Mrs. Sullivan and Mr. Posson stated in their petition that they desire to put into effect both in Kaukauna and Little Chute a combination rate to include residence lighting, heating, electric cooking and refrigeration.

With this combination offer, according to the petition, the electrical department expects to encourage electric house heating, particularly in spring and fall when furnaces are not operated and by this means gradually pave the way to electric house heating during the entire year.

Kaukauna's new $200,000 municipal building which was paid for from profits of the electric department, is the only public building in the state which is successfully heated by electricity and the application for the authorization of the rates is the first ever made by a city in Wisconsin.

Following is the city's application to the commission:

"We desire to place in effect in Kaukauna and the village of Little Chute, a combination rate to include residence lighting, electric cooking, heating and refrigeration, in fact all electric service to residence to be metered by one meter and service."

"We hope by such combination rate to encourage electric house heating spring and fall especially when furnace heating cannot be done economically and gradually pave the way to electric house heating.

"The combination rate which we have worked out will pay us a return and also is favorable to the consumer taking the service under same. This rate would apply also on electric water heating that we are now selling under a flat rate of $5 per kilowatt per month where such combination rate was effective.

"The schedule we propose is as follows:

First 20 kw. hours used per month, 8 cents per kw.

Next 20 kw. hours used per month, 6 cents.

Next 100 kw. hours used per month, 3 cents per kw.

Next 150 kw. hours per month, 2 cents per kw.

Next 300 kw. hours used per month, 1½ cents per kw.

Minimum charge per month, $1.

All less 5 per cent if paid in 10 days from date of bill.

Before requesting the filing of above schedule we would like to have the comments of the commission on same.

"Of course, other schedules now on file with the commission would have to remain in effect until such time as we are able to change all customers to such a combination rate."

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service

THIS HAS HAPPENED
NATHANIEL DANN, an artist, is engaged to VIRGINIA BREWSTER, whose father dies after losing his fortune in speculation. NIEL begs VIRGINIA to marry him at once, but an old family friend, FREDERICK DEAN, and his daughter CLARISSA persuade her to make her temporary home with them. This angers NIEL, for he suspects DEAN'S motives. He returns to his work and quarrels with his model, CHIRI, who is jealous of VIRGINIA.

CLARISSA openly snubs MRS. FARLEY, who is angling for the DEAN millions, by giving VIRGINIA the seat of honor next her father at a dinner party. Later MRS. FARLEY tells DEAN he cannot throw her over for the younger girl without paying balm for a wounded heart. Rather than face a scandal which he knew would spoil his chance of winning VIRGINIA, he meets her demands. To remove the other obstacle, he has the president of a company which he controls offer NIEL a high-salaried position — provided he will go to San Francisco at once. NIEL is overjoyed at the offer and goes to beg VIRGINIA to marry him so they can go west together. But DEAN interrupts the lovers' tête-à-tête.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Chapter XI
Nathaniel rose and greeted his host politely but distantly.

"Have you had tea?" Mr. Dean asked Virginia.

"No, we were just talking," she answered.

"About something important," Nathaniel supplied as a direct hint. Dean smiled with much gaiety.

"Then will you order it, my dear? Let us make a little occasion of the afternoon," he said smoothly. He ignored Nathaniel completely.

When a servant responded to her ring Virginia gave the necessary instructions. "And rum," Dean added when she had finished.

They talked desultorily of commonplace matters, each occupied with personal thoughts, until tea was brought. Nathaniel was furious at the interruption and Virginia was disturbed. She was wondering if Dean had overheard her wild words as he entered the room. He was anxious to learn if Nathaniel had told Virginia of the offer he had received to go to the Pacific Coast. He knew he had intruded upon a tête-à-tête between the lovers but that was his purpose and he had no intention of withdrawing.

None of the trio wanted tea. Each simply went through the motions of taking it, Dean adding rum to his cup. Nathaniel curtly refused it.

As the afternoon dragged on Nathaniel was about to despair of an opportunity to tell Virginia of his splendid offer and beg her to consent to go west with him. He began to plan some way of getting rid of Dean ... he could not order the man out of his own drawing room. He was sure if Virginia had been her natural self she would have found a solution for their problem. But observing her closely he felt a stab of pity at the sight of her violet shadowed eyes and weary, drooping mouth. There wasn't much resistance in Virginia at the moment, he perceived ... she was depressed, despondent ... it gave him an idea, however.

"Virginia you look as if a brisk walk in the fresh air would do you a lot of good. How about going out for a while?"

Virginia turned to him eagerly. "I'm sure you're much too tired to think of it," Dean put in hurriedly.

"No, I'm not; I think it would be fine. I'll be down in just a moment, Niel," Virginia said, brightening perceptibly.

Dean glowered at Nathaniel when she was gone.

"I trust you realize she has had little time to recover from her great ordeal," he said acidly. "Don't keep her out long; it would overtax her strength."

"I believe I know how to consider Miss Brewster's best interests," Nathaniel returned warmly.

Dean looked at Nathaniel over a cigarette he was lighting. Nathaniel became still warmer at the supercilious raising of his eyebrows.

"Your statement is open to question, Mr. Dann," Dean said sneeringly.

"That is something for Miss Brewster to decide," Nathaniel answered coldly. "I cannot see that it concerns you, sir."

"Then you do not know that Miss Brewster is, in a sense, my ward. And while she is a member of my household she is under my protection."

"I venture to hope you may be relieved of that responsibility very shortly," Nathaniel responded icily.

"But until then I assure you I shall add my protection to yours."

Virginia returned at that moment and her presence prevented further verbal clashing.

Nathaniel lost no time, once they were out of the house, in telling her of Barrows' offer. Her reception of the news amazed him. She would not hear of his going.

"But Virginia darling, we could be married at once. It's different when it's a question of being separated. I shouldn't turn down this chance."

"Yes, you should, Niel. Don't you suppose I know you are planning to let your mural work go just for my sake? I couldn't have that. It's always right even if you didn't. No, I'd rather live in a chock-a-block flat and know what you were doing the work you love, getting near your dreams!"

"Virginia, you inspire me, but I'm afraid I'm not a wise advisor for you come first before my work. I can't think of wasting years and years for you while I struggle for success in serious achievement. And I know I have no right to ask you to share responsibilities with me. That's too big a price for whatever fame I might attain if I gave up illustrating and commercial work."

"You have no right to make me a stumbling block in your career, Niel. I don't want you to go on doing pot-boilers always."

"They will permit us to marry, Virginia. And even at that you will find it hard enough to endure the loss of your money. If I weren't so damned selfish and in love with you, I'd give you up altogether. That would be the decent thing to do, but I'm not up to it. Just thinking of it scares me."

"I'd not let you do it. But I can't let you drop the murals either."

"Well, I won't go west without you. But I'm going on with the pot boilers after I do the murals, because I can't stand this, and I won't let you starve for art."

"I've told you"

"Yes, but you've never starved before. And you aren't happy where you are, so it's up to me to do something. Besides, you know, I expect to like being married to you." He laughed happily, but a thought that crossed his mind sobered him instantly.

"You started to tell me about something or someone you were afraid of just before Mr. Dean came in," he said seriously. "What was it, Virginia?"

"It wasn't anything. I was nervous," Virginia answered evasively. She had decided not to tell him that she was worried about the subtle change in Deane's manner toward her since she had been a guest in his house. If Nathaniel possessed this knowledge he would again attempt to persuade her into an early marriage, Virginia felt.

"You named Chiri as one of your fears. That's ridiculous, Virginia, but if you want me to break with her entirely"

"You don't think I'd be so priggish do you, Niel? as to want that? I can't imagine why I said I was afraid of her, but just for the moment I felt sort of helpless and at everyone's mercy. And she did fail to give you my message, you know. That wasn't friendly."

"I only hope all your fears are as groundless as any on Chiri's account," Nathaniel told her.

"I know I was silly, but it's easy to imagine things when you are unhappy. You do forgive me, don't you, Niel?"

"It's taking advantage of me to ask me that out here on the street, Virginia."

"We can go back to the house, she answered smiling slyly.

"To face the gargoyle?"

"Probably he's gone, if you mean Mr. Dean. I think I'd better go back anyway; I'm feeling just a little bit tired."

They found Clarissa and Russell at home when they returned, so Nathaniel did not linger. Virginia went with him into the hall when he was leaving and they made a date for the following evening.

A few minutes after Virginia returned to the drawing room, Clarissa upstairs to dress for dinner. Russell was to drive her out on Long Island and they had to make an early start.

"She'll be an hour," Russell grumbled, "putting on no more clothes than a half dancer. What'll we do? Have a drink?"

Virginia had noticed a cocktail shaker and glasses on a table when she and Nathaniel came in. But she hadn't noticed until now that Russell's face was flushed and that he fumbled badly with his cigarette.

"No," she said. "I don't want one. You'd better not take any more if you're driving."

"Think I had too many?" hugh? Well, say, you wouldn't blame me then if I did something I'd be afraid to do if I wasn't lost, would you?"

He came over to her and smiled with delight at what he considered his cunning.

Virginia made the mistake of smiling at him. She knew instantly that it was a mistake, because he had her in his arms, kissing her on the lips before she could even suspect what he meant to do.

A tremor of disgust shook her from head to foot and she jerked violently to release herself. But Russell had caught her securely and Virginia was helpless. She managed to turn her face away from his lips. The movement brought her eyes in line with the door. For one horrified moment she ceased to resist her captor and lay still in his arms.

Clarissa stood in the doorway.

BURLEIGH GRIMES HURLS BUCS TO 5 TO 3 WIN OVER NEW YORK

St. Louis Cardinals Wallop Braves Third Time To Increase Lead

Brewers' Misplays and Poor Pitching Give Indians Another Victory in Association

Perhaps the Pittsburgh Pirates aren't going anywhere in particular this year, but they seem determined to keep the National League championship in the west.

Bowing over the New York G's for the third time in a row, Monday, the Corsairs thereby earned a vote of thanks from the St. Louis Cardinals who took occasion to beat the Boston Braves again and stretch their lead to four one-hitter games.

Burleigh Grimes was the hero in McGraw's slate Monday. The spitballer has faced his former teammates three times this year and beaten them every time. The score of his last victory was 5 to 3.

Two homers accounting for five runs, featured the Cardinals 8 to 5 triumph over the Braves. Jim Bottomley hit his nineteenth of the year with two on and George Harper found one man on the bases when he was paled out for the circuit.

The Cincinnati Reds, holding the third rung in the standing, drew up to within eight percentage points of the Giants, with their third straight decision over the Phillips, 5 to 4. The Phils outfit the Reds but Ray Klop bow down when danger threatened.

Dazzy Vance pitched the Brooklyn Robins to their third win in the five-game series with the Chicago Cubs, 6 to 2, fielding by the Dodger infield kept Vance out of trouble.

The American league campaign saw the New York Yankees lead shaved to 11 games when the champions split a double-header with the St. Louis Browns while the Philadelphia Athletics were crushing Cleveland.

Herb Pennock shut out the Browns with six hits in the opening at New York, 4 to 0 but four Yankee hurlers were battered for 20 hits in the nightcap which went to St. Louis, 12 to 6. Lou Gehrig was banished from the field of action for disputing a decision in the closing encounter.

George Grant's streak of seven straight wins was snapped as the Athletics buried the Indians under a 14 to 4 score, making 23 hits.

All Thomas bested sad Sam Jones in a pitching duel at Washington, the Chicago White Sox galloping away with a 3 to 1 decision.

The Boston Red Sox took both ends of a double-bill with Detroit, 4 to 0 and 5 to 4. Jack Russell bested Earl Whitehill in a pitching duel in the opener. Big Ed Morris, the Alabama find, won his twelfth victory in 16 starts in the second game. The Tigers made only 11 hits in the two games.

Chicago (49)—A nine run rally in the "lucky" seventh gave St. Paul a 14 to 8 victory over Columbus Monday and enabled them to move into second place in the American association.

The Brewers suffered a setback and lost their opportunity of tying St. Paul for second place honors when they dropped an 11 to 8 game to the Indians leading Indians.

Toledo's 8 to 6 victory over Minneapolis placed them in a tie for third place with the Kansas City Blues who were shutout 2 to 0 by Louisville.

KIMBERLY JUNIORS WIN AND LOSE GAME

Play Green Bay at Bay Thursday Afternoon and Appleton at Home Friday

Kimberly— The Kimberly Legion Booster baseball team split even on their tow weekend games winning.

Saturday they journeyed to Seymour where they defeated the Seymour Legion team 13 to 5. The Papermakers were outhit 16 to 12, but they bunched their hits while the Seymour team had errors at critical times to allow the visitors to outscore them. Eight of the Seymour men were put out running the paths, the Boosters making two double plays and catching several men on attempted steals.

Bouressa pitched for Kimberly and struck out five men. Buck Le May did the receiving. Sigi pitched for Seymour and Puls caught.

Sunday the Boosters lost to Appleton 3 to 2. Poor headwork and loose baserunning lost the game.

Wednesday the Boosters journey to Green Bay to play the Legion team of that city and Thursday they meet Appleton on the home lot.

DAUBER JAEGER TOSSES

Fond du Lac—Dauber Jaeger, one of the state's boxing referees for the last 12 years, has sent his resignation to the Wisconsin State boxing commission. It became known Monday Jaeger said that his resignation was presented for his own reasons. The Fond du Lac man was first appointed as a referee by the state boxing commission in 1917. As a boxer he fought Ad Wolcott, then the latter the lightweight champion.

RAILROAD SOFTBALLERS
CHALK UP TENTH WIN

Paddock Cleared of Professional Charge

The Cherokees, an Northeastern Railway company team in the American Softball League, won its tenth straight game Monday evening from the Peoria Peacock team, 7 and 2. The game was featured by good base running and heavy hitting by Charlie and Ward Greenan. Bill Greenan pitched his usual good game for the Railroaders and was backed by expert support.

Last week the railroaders defeated the Fox River Peter company team in a record game. The contest of seven hours was all over 11 minutes after it started the papermakers losing 1 and winning 1.

Jersey City— Jimmy Jones Youngtown, O., won over George Ward, Elizabeth, N. J., (12).

OLYMPIC ATHLETES WILL TRY TO SCORE IN TWO BIG EVENTS

Hahn May Win 800, 1,500
Meter Races, McGinnis in Pole Vault, High Jump

New York—(AP)—Three American athletes, J. C. Ray, Lloyd Hahn and Charles M. Ginnis, will attempt to score a few victories in the Olympic track and field championships at Amsterdam but it is doubtful whether any one of them will succeed.

Of the trio, Hahn perhaps has the best chance to score a double, although his efforts will be put forth in two events, the 80 and 1500 meters, in which the steepest sort of competition will be forthcoming from European rivals.

Ray stands out now as the greatest sprinter runner in training. The performances of the team in Nevershan in setting the American record and on the world's mark for the distance surpass anything so far registered abroad by his closest rivals—Dr. Guy Belcher (London), Douglas Lowe of England, Oscar Cannon, and Serafin Martin of France.

Joe Ray probably will have a better chance to win in the marathon than the 1500-meter race although he is far from the outstanding American in the latter event. In fact his only company from home will be Billie Romeo, the former Penn State runner who placed fourth in the 500-meter championship two years ago.

Ray, while breaking the American record in the final tryout, was not within hailing distance of the best marks of the two famous Finns, Willie Ranta, 144 winner, and Paavo Nurmi, the world's record holder.

The other athlete attempting a double, Charley McGinnis, Wisconsin's great pole vault and high jumper, will likely have it all own countrymen to beat if he is to land on top in either event. He tied Bob King in the high jump trials and beat the Olympic champion Hal Osborn, but it is doubtful whether he can surpass such pole vaulters as Stan Carr, Lee Barnes or Bill Droegeveller, all three 10 feet 9 inches at the final trials, while Barnes and Carr have surpassed 14 feet. McGinnis did 13 feet 6 inches between high jumps last Saturday and in a day when he can concentrate on vaulting may be able to go higher.

The only two performers who scored double victories in 1924 will not attempt to repeat. Osborn won the decathlon in 1924 but is defending only the high jump crown. Bud Houser was both shot put and discus thrower last time but he is concentrating on tossing the platter this year.

Sectionally, the 1924 team is the best balanced and most representative America has ever produced. The east still maintains the lead but the traditional supremacy is pretty well wiped out by the onrush of talent from the southern, middle west and Pacific coast which turn aside most of the individual sensations of the final tests as the powerful Los Angeles Athletic club team asserted national championship supremacy.

DOTY TENNIS CLUB AGAIN HOLDS MEET

Fox River Valley Doubles
Championship Matches
Played July 21, 22

The annual Fox river valley tennis doubles championship will be held at Neenah July 21 and 22 according to announcement made recently by Doty Tennis Club of that city under whose auspices the annual tourney is held. Two trophies, one donated by J. C. Kimberly, the other by D. K. Brown, will be awarded to the winners. Present holders of the awards are Harold Amos and Louis Reichenbach of Milwaukee, Art Ror and Harry Gofford of Milwaukee, and V. Vanier.

Four complete courts of the tennis club will be the scene of the contests, with six others which are being played at the city's school for the moment. The counts of the Doty club members have been completed.

Doty Tennis Club's new net now has no reason to let last year's participants according to Harry E. Williams, chairman of the tournament committee, who placed the new net in the state capital to be used in the tournament.

The big catcher known as a "fighter" on the diamond came to the Prairies in 1924 from the Boston Nationals by the waiver route. Presently he will be paired with the New York Giants.

SPECIALS WIN ANOTHER:
COP FROM BRANDTS, 5-2

For four seasons Smith was the pitcher manager behind the bar and major instrumental in the Pittsburg team's drive two years ago, when the Pirates won 12 games. His league career reached its peak in 1924 when he was not only the best of his team but also a three-day sensation in the All-star game when he beat the New York Giants, 5-2.

Smith's record in the 1924 season was not only remarkable but also unique. Due to a three-day suspension of 12 days he had to give up his All-star appearance and was forced to leave the Giants and return to the Boston team.

Therefore Smith did not play in any games here. Thereafter Smith did not play in games at Boston and did not play in the All-star game.

Stencils

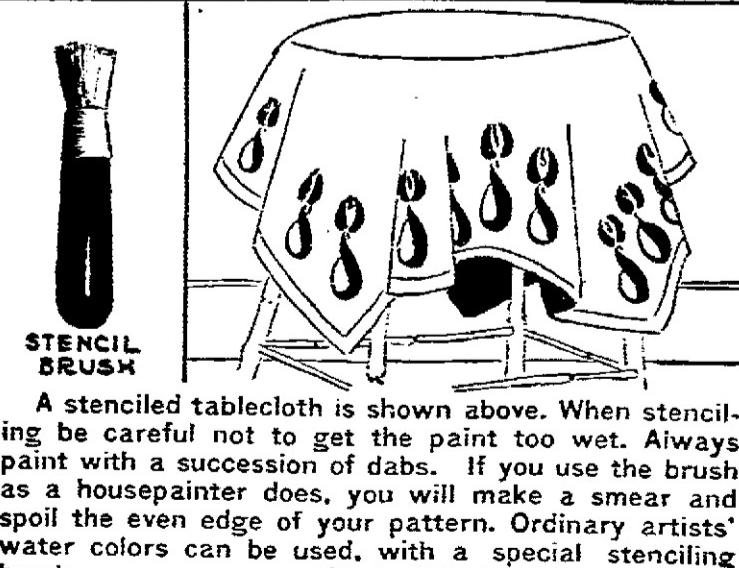

One of the simplest and most effective ways of ornamenting tablecloths is to stencil a pattern on the border. A stencil plate is simply a piece of stiff paper with a pattern cut out. The pattern is painted on the cloth which is held under the stencil. Figures 1, 2 and 3 above show how to draw and cut a stencil. The black portion in Figure 3 should be cut out.

By NEA. Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge. Copyright, 1923-26.

This shows how to make use of the "veining" in a leaf. This pattern can be stenciled on neckties, handkerchiefs or other goods.

The laurel leaf design pictured above makes a very effective border for curtains or can be painted onto walls.

A stenciled tablecloth is shown above. When stenciling be careful not to get the paint too wet. Always paint with a succession of dabs. If you use the brush as a housepainter does, you will make a smear and spoil the even edge of your pattern. Ordinary artists' water colors can be used, with a special stenciling brush.

R. P. Boardman Declares Trust Companies Safeguard Funds

New London — Speaking as manager of the trust department of the First National Bank of Oshkosh, Robert P. Boardman addressed local Rotarians at their regular club luncheon on Monday at the Hotel Elwood. Mr. Boardman explained in detail the meaning of trust funds as connected with insurance. This department, the speaker said, is coming more and more into recognized standing, having been created so that the expenditure of large funds accumulated and left as insurance may be safeguarded against unsound business dealings and unsafe investments. About one billion dollars annually left in insurance is lost through investments of doubtful authenticity, there being many salesmen of like doubtfulness skilled in ways to mislead insurance beneficiaries he said. The trust association is the safeguard between the reliable beneficiary and the inexperienced, the speaker maintained.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS ARE DIVIDED OVER SINGING TEACHER

Appears Doubtful if Any One Section Will be Able to Swing Proposition

Discussion on the proposition of employing a singing teacher featured the annual meeting of school electors in the various districts in Outagamie Monday night.

While some districts were strongly in favor of at least giving the new method of education a trial, their neighbors were against it with the result that it appears doubtful that even a trial circuit can be established.

Nearly every meeting was poorly attended and the few citizens who were there were anxious to get the session over with as soon as possible. Election of officers was held in every district and in many cases the incumbents were reelected.

The usual decision to buy additional books and make repairs to the building where needed also came up and were passed.

Voters of the Badger school district, town of Grand Chute, decided to enter into an agreement with four other schools and engage a music teacher to have charge of a music department in the five schools next year, at the annual district meeting Monday evening. The matter was held open until it can be determined if four other schools in the vicinity will enter the plan. The sum of $1,200 was voted to carry on school work for the next year and Albert Jandre was reelected director for three years. Mike Gayhardt was chairman of the meeting. Salaries of the three officers were raised as follows, clerk from $20 to $30; treasurer from $1 to $10; and director from $1 to $6.

William Downey was reelected treasurer of School district No. 1, town of Center, at the annual meeting Monday morning. Barney Herford was reelected janitor. After a discussion of the proposed music program it was decided to hold the matter open until further details can be secured from A. G. Meating, superintendent of schools. The meeting voted $900 to carry on school work next year in addition to the $400 balance left from last year. It also was decided to purchase a scale for health work in the school.

Henry Haferbacher was reelected director of the Woodlawn school district, town of Grand Chute, at the annual meeting Monday evening. Albert Brockman was chairman of the meeting. It was voted to raise $3,000 to carry on the school next year. The members voted not to enter the proposed plan for teaching music to rural school children because they felt the rural school teacher did not have time to devote to the subject.

In District 2, town of Grand Chute, the election decided it was not ready for the adoption of the proposed program of music teaching but decided to take the subject up again at the next meeting. In addition to routine business, Leon N. Berg was reelected clerk and John Adendorf was elected director.

Although several matters of minor importance received much discussion, the main business transacted in District 4, town of Center, was the reselection of all officers. The suggestion that a singing teacher be employed met with refusal by most of those present.

Business at the meeting of Joint District 4, Greenville-Dale-Hortonia, consisted of electing William Schulz, director and disposing of routine matters.

The electors of Joint District 3, Dale-Caledonia, decided to wait until a new teacher was employed before bringing up the question of hiring a singing teacher. Walter Danke was reelected director.

In District 3, Town of Grand Chute, 5 of the 16 persons present were in favor of employing a singing teacher at the school. It was decided to make extensive repairs to the school building and Henry Hoen was reelected treasurer.

Practically all of the business transacted in District 2, town of Grand Chute, was the selection of John Adendorf as director. Those present decided to wait awhile before taking in the matter of employing a singing teacher.

In District 8 of the same town, Albert Jandre was chosen director and the majority of those present decided that a singing teacher should be employed.

The problem of furnishing heat for the building occupied most of the time at the meeting in Joint District 1, Dale-Clayton-Winchester. The proposition of employing a music teacher was not brought up. Arthur Winchester was elected clerk and the treasurer and director were reelected.

The adoption of the singing program was the feature of the meeting of District 8, town of Black Creek, according to Dr. J. Laird Clark, who was selected. It also was decided to renew the school building and make other repairs. Funds totaling $8,500 will be raised for that purpose.

In District 5, town of Dale, it was decided to buy a quantity of new books if not to vote on the proposition of employing a singing teacher for another year. All efforts were reelected and there was but a small attendance at the meeting.

Walter Bertie succeeded Henry C. Lee as clerk in District 7, town of Center, and William Bergfeld was reelected director. In this district also, the singing teacher proposition was voted over for another year.

In Joint District One, Hortonville-Tentonia, Arthur Collier was reelected director and it was decided to raise $5,000 and the proposition of employing a singing teacher was not brought up.

William McLaughlin was named director in District 2, town of Ellington, and only routine business was discussed.

Ervin Kruege was reelected treasurer and because of the small attendance, no other business was brought up at the meeting of District 7, town of Center.

Residents of District one, town of Ellington, are for employing a singing teacher, it was decided at the meeting Sunday night. Henry Flunker was elected treasurer and routine business was transacted.

Although the proposition of employing a singing teacher had found favor in nearby districts, District 5, town of Grand Chute, rejected it. Arthur Ecker was elected director.

Another period may be added if the number increases, according to Mr. Pugh.

MAROONED Fliers RAVAGED BY FEVER

people. This was held to indicate that measures had been taken for a forced landing otherwise the stores would have been kept in the dirigible's interior.

Dr. Finn Malmgren and the two men who started afoot for land with him had fifty pounds of stores when they started on May 30. They had no weapons and it was thought that they all perished.

Hope for rescue of the marooned men appeared Tuesday to lie in the Russian ice breaker Krassin. This vessel found progress through the ice field slow and Tuesday was 25 nautical miles away from the marooned men.

Eventually, says Captain Tornberg, head of the Swedish rescue mission, if ice conditions improve, the ship can reach the refugees.

Prospect of rescue by air was believed Tuesday to be dwindling.

LUNDORG TELLS STORY
Stockholm (AP)—The long days and nights of hardship and suffering, on half rations and in imminent peril, experienced by the marooned men of the Italia of North East Land were related in a report sent here by Lieutenant Lundborg.

He said that one of the bitterest parts of the experience was that the party could see land less than five miles away, but could not cross the ice-filled water to reach safety.

Telling of his second trip to the stranded men after the rescue of Noble, Lieutenant Lundborg said that it was his purpose to rescue Natale Cecconi, motor chief whose leg had been broken below the knee on May 25 when the gondola of the Italia was torn loose.

"There was a strong wind," he said, "and the plane on landing capsized quite close to the ice margin. Cecconi was very ill and it was with hardship and difficulty that he was transported to the plane where he spent the night. The next morning the tent was placed over the plane.

"Horrible days succeeded, with mists and tempests and the cold was as in the depths of winter, now and then we could see land about five miles away. The way was not long, but it was impossible to cross. Then the wind shifted, the ice floe were scattered or piled up in grinding heaps."

"For 12 days we lived in hope of rescue. We only had half rations in the morning ch. dates and cakes, a dinner polar bear lard which was cut from the bear's carcass and for supper corned beef and cakes. Further we had cigarettes thrown down from the plane."

"The Italians became more and more prostrated in consequence of the hard climate.

"When it was reported that my comrade, Lieutenant Shyberg, was to search for us, we sought a good landing place. This was hard to find as the ice everywhere was soft. We worked two days and one night at last Shyberg came and as you see, I am lively and hearty after my adventure."

HEAVY DEMAND FOR BOOKS AT "Y" LIBRARY

Cool weather Monday apparently encouraged boys of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. to read, judging from the number of books drawn from the department library. The library consists of about 300 books of fiction, nature study, sport-craft and other subjects in which boys are interested. About 50 books were taken out Monday, according to J. W. Pugh, boys' work secretary.

STREET DEPARTMENT OILING HIGHWAYS

Oiling of streets in the city started Monday morning and if the weather holds off with showers for the next week, it is probable that most of the work will be completed. Oiling operations began twice last week but heavy rainstorms which stalled the roads put a halt to the work.

JUDGE RAPS POLICE AS HE FREES DRIVER FROM DRUNK CHARGE

Criticizes Officers for Holding Home Owner in Cell Over Night

Reprimanding the police department for booking a home owning resident of Appleton and holding him in a cell all night, Judge Fred V. Heinemann, sitting in municipal court Tuesday morning, dismissed a charge of drunken driving against Arnold Schihabel, 623 W. Commercial st.

The judge pointed out that the state had only proved that Schihabel had consumed but three bottles of "near-beer" on the night of his arrest.

"While it seems to be a general knowledge in this community that three bottles of near-beer will make anyone sick, there is a serious doubt in my mind that it is enough to make one drunk," the judge said.

He pointed out that the law made it necessary for the state to prove a man was guilty and he said the defense witnesses had counterbalanced the evidence presented by the state and therefore he had no other course than to discharge the defendant.

Judge Theodore Davis left Tuesday for a weeks vacation and Judge Heinemann was sitting in his place.

Schihabel was arrested on the evening of May 29 on S. Story-st. Officer Deltgen, who made the arrest, testified that the car was driving zig-zagged from one side of the road to the other and that when the car stopped Schihabel slumped over the wheel.

4-H CLUBS TO TAKE IMPORTANT PART IN SEYMOUR FAIR

PLAN BIG TIME WITH PLENTY OF FUN FOR ALL WHO WILL VISIT

Boy Scouts, Too, Will Be
Special Guests; Are Invited
from Three Counties

BY W. F. WINSEY

Seymour—All preparations to make this year's Seymour Fair the best and the biggest ever seen in this part of the state are rapidly being completed.

Some of the big popular attractions will be the boys and girls of the 4-H Clubs of Outagamie county, the Boy Scouts of Outagamie, Brown and Shawano counties and the track events.

One hundred boys of the 4-H Clubs, under Robert Amundson county agent and local leaders, will be on hand at the opening of the fair to exhibit their projects in competition and to entertain their friends, relatives and the public. About an equal number of 4-H Club girls, under the leadership of Nellie McDermott, supervising teacher of the county, will be on hand for the same purpose. So popular are these boys and girls throughout the county and the splendid work they are doing that they will be practically running a fair within a fair. Secretary George H. Fiedler is offering every possible inducement to 4-H Club members to attend the fair.

Secretary Fiedler has invited the Boy Scouts of the counties mentioned to attend the fair on the day and evening of August 23 and offered them free admission. Having Boy Scouts at a fair in uniform as special guests of a fair association is a new move in county fairs and one that will prove very popular in this locality. According to the program, the Boy Scouts will drill and perform stunts before the grand stand and have free rein to a good time during their visit.

Twenty-new, modern box stalls, 10 feet by 12 feet, have been built on the fair grounds under one roof which will give the fair a total of 50 box stalls. It is expected that this total housing capacity will accommodate all the horsemen who desire to enter the track events. Right at the present time the race track is in superb condition according to the horsemen who are working out their horses. On the list of horsemen already on the track and their horses are J. O. Birmingham, Hortonville, with Auto Tell and Kelly B. Tony Treman, Seymour, with four horses, Starlight and Spire, owned by H. J. Sturgeon Bay, Uncle Tom and I. Will Tell, owned by Dr. William Madison, Appleton, and Press fast, owned by Herman Marks, Townsend, Wisconsin. Gehl L., owned by Dr. F. D. Sexton, is on the track. James Dana, Seymour, has Bird S and several other horses on the track.

DAIRYING NEEDS CONSTANT STUDY

Seven Problems Confront Industry, University Professor Says

Madison—(P)—Recognition of dairying as a real industry and a constant study of its production and manufacture needs is a necessity, in the opinion of K. L. Hatch, professor at the University of Wisconsin.

Seven problems confront the dairy industry, Mr. Hatch believes; economy of production, herd testing; quality recognitions; a new set of standards; better utilization of by-products; the packing of cheese and the use of electricity in the dairy industry.

Dairy manufacturers, Hatch said, "are realizing, as never before, that their problem is one of producing an article that will please the trade and stimulate, through quality, its own demand." The problems are, he said, "economic problems and must be faced with facts not now available."

The problem of economic production ranks first, in Mr. Hatch's opinion. "The herd must produce economically, the plant must manufacture economically and the product must be distributed in the same manner."

The herd test plan, he believed, "should be universally applied by all pure bred breeders; the economic process begins on the farm with the herd; yet 27 per cent of our dairymen know almost nothing about the production of either their herds or their individual cows."

Other claims of Mr. Hatch are that: More emphasis must be placed on quality; new definitions of standards must be established; the utilization of by-products must be solved; new methods of cheese curing should be found.

WORMS AND CATERPILLARS DAMAGE WISCONSIN CROPS

Janesville—(P)—Crops, especially corn and tobacco are suffering from cut worms and white grub in southern Wisconsin this year, while the tent caterpillar is causing damage to many orchards.

Two remedies for these evils are available, according to R. T. Glassco, Rock-co agent, who says the farmer Rock-co agent, who says the farmer must either replant or use his fields.

"If corn is replanted," he says, "some ear-type is recommended. If fields are badly damaged, the best thing to do is to disc them and burn them into soy beans and sudan grass. Grubs do not seem to damage soy beans badly."

Mr. Glassco recommends an orchard damage the use of fertilizer or sulphur around plants. Eradicating the tree caterpillar Mr. Glassco suggests the use of a spray containing a strong solution of arsenate of lead. The mixture he recommends is one and one-half pounds of arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water. To this three pounds of lime should be added to prevent ready cutworms four times the crop.

Farmers On West Coast
Make Queen Bees To Order

Herman and Mrs. Peterman pour out a shipment of bees, at their Stockton, Calif., farm.

Stockton, Calif.—Making busy bees busier is a part of the business of Herman Peterman, queen bee raiser near here.

When a queen bee is taken away from a colony of worker bees they immediately become excited to a point where they will work frantically to develop a new queen. Peterman capitalizes on this natural desire and keeps colonies of bees working for weeks at a time developing new queens by the dozen.

All bees are the same in the larva stage. If all larvae were fed and cared for the same by the workers in the hive, another generation of workers would be the only result. It takes extra food and extra care to develop queens and when ordinary larvae receive that special attention it turns into queens.

Knowing this fact and the willingness of the worker bees to strive to develop a new queen, Peterman places the ordinary brood in special cells in which the queen bee has been removed. The workers immediately start pampering the new brood and queen bees start to develop.

Peterman's farm has a market in many states and in Canada. Peterman follows the practice of putting ordinary larvae in special wax cells and then placing the cells in hives, from which the queen bee has been removed for a couple of days.

The workers, anxious to get a new queen, start work caring for the larvae and adding colonies of bees working for weeks at a time developing new queens by the dozen.

As soon as Peterman sees that the bees have been accepted he moves them to a quieter place, a double hive in which the queen is held in the lower half by a screen through which she is just too large to pass. The workers, desirous of having a queen in the upper half of the hive, finish the job started by the queenless bees.

While the natural instincts of the working bees have been used to advantage so far in the development of a queen bee, experienced bee men know that they must be particularly watchful when the hatching time arrives. The first queen bee to hatch would destroy all the other larvae.

It takes 11 days for a queen bee to develop, so Peterman has found it advisable to remove the cells on the tenth day and distribute them around in hives, where they can hatch out in safety.

With the queen bees, which Peterman ships to various parts of the country in small wooden boxes, he frequently is called upon to ship bees or the nucleus of a hive. Orders in the bee trade come on a poundage basis.

The way an order is filled on the Peterman farm is to go out to a crowded hive with a shipping container, a pair of scales and a big funnel. The container is placed on the scales and bees poured into the container through the funnel until a full measure is recorded. It is said that there are 5000 bees in every pound.

Cold storage holdings of butter at the four principal markets on July 5 amounted to 30,296,047 pounds, as compared with 5,778,337 pounds on the same day last year. Butter prices are 3½ cents higher than last year.

The cheese market at the close of the week was unsettled, and in buyers' favor. Trading was quiet with most buyers operating cautiously.

The state department reports that production in New York is about the same as last year, their markets being well maintained at higher prices than last year. This is ascribed to increased demand from Great Britain and to the decrease of the Canadian "make". Cold storage holdings of cheese at the four principal markets on July 5 amounted to 10,204,507 pounds, as compared with 11,442,287 pounds on the same day last year.

Cheese prices are 2½ cents higher than a year ago.

Situation on ice for marks is improved during the week. Early losses were regained, and new rich levels were reached, and new rich levels for the year recorded. As compared with the previous week, butter grades were 15 to 20 cents higher, butter grades 10 to 15 cents higher, and packing savings 10 to 15 cents higher. Butter prices are 2½ cents higher than last year.

Cattle are about $2.50 and sheep about $1.50 higher than the same year ago.

PEA CANNERRIES HAVE VARIANCE IN WAGES

Sections in This Part of the State Pay Highest Prices for Labor

Madison—(P)—In a report covering the operation of 129 Wisconsin pea canneries during 1927, the state industrial commission today noted wide variance in the wages paid workers, the length of the cannery season and of the usual operating day.

The usual wage paid to women and young boys employed in pea canneries, the commission's report said, was as low as 22 cents per hour in some canneries and as high as 35½ cents in others. The maximum number of hours during which the canneries operated during any one day during the season ranged from 7½ hours to 12.5 hours.

The usual working week was as short as 14 operating hours in some canneries and as long as 82 hours in others and the usual operating day ranged from 8½ to 9 hours.

The average usual operating day was 67 hours in length and the average usual week 327 hours. The maximum number of hours during which canneries operated during any one week ranged from 12 days to 83 days. All canneries combined averaged 25.5 operating days.

FINLEY IS RAISING EMERGENCY HAY CROP

Seymour—John Finley, route 4, one of the few farmers in the country who took advantage of the opportunity when faced by a shortage in the hay crop this spring, Mr. Finley selected a mixture of Sudan grass and sorghum and says that he has a good stand and the crop is doing well. He says this is a superior crop. He has 15 acres of oats, 12 acres of barley, 12 acres of oats, 12 acres of turnips, 12 acres of rye, 12 acres of corn, 12 acres of beans and 12 acres of soy beans. The rest of his crops are in the ground and he says that he has ready cutworms four times the crop.

KAUKAUNA FARMER DEMONSTRATES THAT FERTILIZING PAYS

Neighbors from Miles Around
See Effects on Field of
Anton M. Miller

BY W. F. WINSEY

Kaukauna—A demonstration of the use of commercial fertilizer on growing and ripened crops was held Friday on the farm of Anton M. Miller, at the suggestion of Robert Amundson, county agent. As the farmers of the vicinity were very busy harvesting and cultivating corn, the attendance was not very large but those who came, saw and compared, were well paid for their trouble.

"The soil in the field where the demonstration took place was so depleted of plant food a year ago by cropping records. The club is composed of 10 boys and one girl and each member grows in it and now Mr. Miller has one of the best stands of alfalfa in the state," said Frank Titman, formerly practicing as a soils expert, but now a Kaukauna coal dealer.

In giving his reasons for using lime and super-phosphate on his fields, Mr. Miller said that in one way at least the alfalfa plant is like a farm animal or a child. A child or an animal that is well nourished, healthy and sturdy in the fall, has a much better chance of enduring the rigors of a Wisconsin winter and coming out strong in the spring than has the unfortunate one that is undernourished, skinny and scrawny. So it is with the alfalfa plants. The underfed ones are either winter-killed or come through the winter weak and puny.

In the demonstration, Mr. Miller showed his visitors three alfalfa fields, and one cornfield in which he is experimenting with commercial fertilizers.

In a 12 acre field of alfalfa, 6 acres got no fertilizer. On the 6 acres fertilized, 400 pounds of super-phosphate was used to the acre. Mr. Miller is now cutting the crop. The unfertilized part of the field will yield about a ton of hay to the acre, as compared with a two and one-half ton to the acre yield from the fertilized part of the field, the first cutting.

Altogether, on his crops now growing, Mr. Miller has used 120 bushels of barnyard manure, 30 tons of crushed limestone, and 8 tons of commercial fertilizer. He expects to use 60 tons of limestone this fall.

TESTING ASSOCIATION TO PICNIC ON JULY 18

Greenville—On July 18, the annual picnic of the Ellington-Dale Cow Testing Association which is finishing its tenth year of business will be held on the farm of Fred Breckin in the town of Ellington.

The speakers on the picnic program are George Humphrey, College of Agriculture, Paul Borchard, Editor of Hoard's Dairymen, and Roy Harris, supervisor of cow testing work in Wisconsin.

The officers of the association are John Spears, Ellington, president, John Dobberstein, Hortonville, secretary, and Armond Dobberstein, Hortonville, cow tester.

SEYMOUR 4-H CLUB IS GETTING ALONG FINE

Seymour—John Colling, local dealer of Seymour 4-H club, says that the members are getting on very nicely in the care of their calves and in keeping records. The club is composed of 10 boys and one girl and each member grows in it and now Mr. Miller has one of the best stands of alfalfa in the state," said Frank Titman, formerly practicing as a soils expert, but now a Kaukauna coal dealer.

In giving his reasons for using lime and super-phosphate on his fields, Mr. Miller said that in one way at least the alfalfa plant is like a farm animal or a child. date, the corn in the rows skipped is no more than half as tall as that in the balance of the field.

To a seven acre field, Mr. Miller applied super-phosphate last fall at the rate of 500 pounds to the acre and then plowed the field. On the same field he applied 4 tons of lime to the acre last spring. After double discing the field to mix the lime and soil, he left the field for three weeks to give the lime a chance to act. At the end of that period, he applied more super-phosphate at the rate of 700 pounds to the acre. To mix this coating with the soil, he double disc'd the field, dragged and rolled it. After this kind of preparation, he sowed alfalfa at the rate of 18 pounds of seed to the acre. No nurse crop. He now has according to Mr. Titman, one of the best stands of alfalfa to be seen in Wisconsin.

Altogether, on his crops now growing, Mr. Miller has used 120 bushels of barnyard manure, 30 tons of crushed limestone, and 8 tons of commercial fertilizer. He expects to use 60 tons of limestone this fall.

In his 10 acre cornfield, Mr. Miller applied 75 tons of super-phosphate to the acre but in one part of the field, skipped two rows. Even at this early
